

Conditions of Use

1. No use is to be made of National Railway Museum research information or photographic imagery other than that stated on the request form. No further reproduction or storage of imagery is to be carried out other than for the stated purpose and research information must not be handed to a second party for use.

2. The granting of permission to use National Railway Museum photographic images or research information does not imply the transfer of copyright or exclusive rights to the material.

3. The applicant must complete and sign the request form and include payment for photographs and/or administration fees and the first hour of research charge. Any additional charges incurred for photocopying and additional hours of research will be forwarded to the applicant prior to the request proceeding.

4. Photographic imagery must be credited with the text National Railway Museum printed in close proximity to the image(s), source information must be legible.

5. Research information must be credited to National Railway Museum in the bibliography of the publication or credits of the production.

6. Immediately after publication, the applicant agrees to supply the National Railway Museum with a copy of the publication or production at no cost to the Museum.

Copyright

If copyright has not been assigned to the National Railway Museum it is the responsibility of the requestor to determine if the work or image requires copyright permission. The requestor must contact the copyright holder to obtain permission in writing before copy or use. Where possible, the Museum will provide the name of the photographer or author to facilitate this process.

For more information on copyright please visit www.copyright.org.au. Any material provided by the Museum that is used within print or digital publication must be credited to the National Railway Museum, the photographer or author if known, or copyright holder if required.
